Johnson University Tennessee Sponsors Service Day

Knoxville, Tennessee, Wednesday, September 17: On this day, Johnson University Tennessee will sponsor an annual service day by sending out over 600 students to serve the communities of greater Knoxville.

Beginning in the morning hours, students volunteer their time at over 25 establishments, including Global Seeds, Beardsley Farm, Salvation Army, child help centers, elementary schools, and homeless shelters throughout Knoxville. At the end of the day, students return to campus and fellowship with one another at a campus cookout. This service tradition started five years ago at Johnson University, and it has been a booming success ever since. SGA president Matt Sears expressed his joy at this opportunity when he said, “It is a great way for the campus at large to engage the greater Knoxville area. We hope this will be a tradition for many more years to come.”

For more information, or to view pictures of Johnson University’s service event, like the Johnson University Facebook page, or view the tag #JUserve on Twitter.

Since 1893, Johnson University has been a leader in Christian higher education. Today the Johnson University System offers more than 70 accredited bachelor’s, master’s, Ph.D., and associate’s programs across three campuses – in East Tennessee, Central Florida, and online. Each campus reflects the University’s mission to equip individuals for Christian ministries and other strategic vocations to extend the kingdom of God.

-END-